About The Benwisken.

Sculpted with the same clarity that defines the mountain itself, The Benwisken offers a perfect blend of elegance and endurance.

Its clean lines, high ceilings, and panoramic glazing are complemented by a rich, grounded exterior—black cladding, black-framed windows, and a maple-clad entrance—a timeless combination that defines our Wild Atlantic Way Collection.

Constructed using Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs), The Benwisken is a celebration of efficient design and sustainable engineering. Every detail is crafted to perform—maximising natural light, reducing energy use, and delivering a quiet, comfortable living environment built to withstand Ireland's coastal conditions.

What Are SIPs?

Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs) are advanced composite panels made up of a high-performance insulating core sandwiched between two layers of Oriented Strand Board (OSB). This modern method delivers exceptional thermal performance, airtightness, and strength—making The Benwicken a home designed for the future of energy-efficient living.
